

Havilah Martinez

Hi! My name is Havilah, but go by Havi. Over the last 2 decades, I've held a wide range of human service positions, including direct support, advocacy roles, coordinating disability services, and person-centered planning with people who have complex needs. I am a stepmom to three incredible young men, including my oldest, who died from a rare terminal illness. He accessed services through the CDCS option for 12 years, so my understanding of CDCS comes from lived experience as a parent and years of professional practice.

My passion is person-centered planning, especially supporting people and families through complex care needs and end-of-life experiences with compassion, respect, and thoughtful guidance. At AB&B, my role focuses on support planning and person-centered planning across all stages of life.

I love to travel, learn from others, and meet new people.
